As of this writing Margaret Stock has not filed with the State of Alaska Division of Elections as a candidate, either as a party nominee, or as a no-party nominee/candidate for the United States Senate. According to the State of Alaska Division of Elections website the following Party candidates have filed for the office of United States Senator to represent Alaska:

Lamb Thomas, Republican.
Locher Bob. Republican.
Mun Kowski Lisa. Republican.
Stevens Sean. Libertarian.

Also according to the website, the following candidates have filed, as No-Party (unaffiliated) for the office of United States Senator to represent Alaska:

Gianatos, Ted (Pending)
Hill, Sidney (Pending)
Kendall, Paul Republican
Walter, Bruce (Pending) Veterans
Whittaker, Jed (Pending).

Nine people have filed, but Margaret Stock has not. Why? I suggest an oversight by the Alaska Democratic Party elite and Margaret Stock — they put the cart before the horse.

from the Associated Press

Juneau — "Alaska Democratic party leaders have approved allowing candidates not affiliated with a political party to run in the Democratic primary. Unaffiliated candidates currently can run ~~in the Democratic~~ for office by petition and gathering signatures. In a release, state party chair Casey Steineau said Democrats want their party to be as inclusive as possible. This would also give voters more choices in the primary, she said. . . .

The Democratic party's central committee approved the change during a weekend meeting. ))

Contrary to Ms. Steineau's ascertion, with Margaret Stock as the Democratic nominee, voters will have fewer choices<sup>s</sup>. No real Democrat nominee, instead a choice of a Republican woman, Margaret Stock and a Republican woman, Lisa Murkowski.

In conclusion, I believe that both the Alaska Democratic Party and Margaret Stock have violated Federal Election law. However, I am not a lawyer, and it is up to the Federal Election Commission to decide whether or not the Alaska Democratic Party and Margaret Stock have violated the law.

Sincerely,
Jed Whittaker
